Simbioza is based on intergenerational cooperation, solidarity and the promotion of lifelong learning. The main purpose of the project is to help the older generation gain a positive experience with a computer, inspire and strengthen their confidence and motivate them for further learning and computer, internet use. In October 2013 the Simbioza project has been carried out for the third time consequently.

SOCIAL IMPACT

Alarming fact: 2009, 80 % of people over the aged of 65 have never touched a computer.

In early 2014 we got the confirmation of our efforts:
National Statistical Office of the Republic of Slovenia has published data showing that shares of daily computer and Internet users among older people are three and seven times higher than five years ago (in 2009).
